Hoodoo Pursues Santa Fe Crossing

SCOUT LEADER IN CLOSE CALL FOR HIS LIFE

F. E. Leedom, prominent business man, residing at Hotel Glenn, 521 Macdonald avenue, narrowly escaped death by being crushed under a large touring car at his garage last night about 9 o'clock.

He suffered a broken nose, fracture of the left leg, contusion about the face and internal injuries, and will be laid up for six weeks, according to Dr. J. B. Spalding, who gave surgical aid and treatment.

Leedom had his car jacked up and was under the machine cleaning out the crank case, when it tipped and came down on him. Fortuitously, Leedom moved simultaneously with the movement of the car, as otherwise his head would have been crushed.

Leedom several months ago came to Richmond from Turlock, and took over the agency of the Duplex Percolator company.

He quickly has taken an enviable position in the actitivies of the city. He is superintendent of Wesley Methodist Sunday school and has been active in Boy Scout work.

His father is a prominent churchman and active worker among the organized farmers of the San Joaquin Valley.

Politics Is Labor Topic For To-day

Labor Temple will be the scene of some spirited discussions along political lines at the meeting there at 2 o'clock this afternoon, according to reports.

Politicians and policies will come on for consideration.

The meeting has been called by the Central Labor Council of Contra Costa County, and representatives of othea labor bodies affiliated with them will take part.

As pointed out in the Record-Herald some days ago, these organizations in the aggregate are a powerful factor in political and civic affairs in Contra Costa County.

But their hardly realize how potent and effective they might be if they exercised cohesiveness and unanimity of action.

With a possible polling power of 10,000, they obviously hold more than a "balance of power," and are therefore in a position to command respect from all candidates.

It would be highly interesting if a radio sending apparatus were installed in Labor Temple and the utterances of some of the speakers broadcasted throughout the county—that is, if the candidates had receiving outfits in working order.

MAN IS TAKEN CHARGED WITH GROOM IN INJURY

As the result of an accident on the San Pablo avenue highway just outside of Berkeley early yesterday morning, in which Merton E. Groom, Contra Costa county, traffic officer was seriously injured, George R Stewart, 22, of Red Bluff, has been charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated.

According to the complaint brought by the district attorney of Contra Costa county, Groom, who is now confined to the Temple Hospital, Berkeley, was run down while standing beside his motorcycle during a reprimand to a traffic violator.

Groom suffered a broken left leg and arm, numerous cuts and bruises of the head and body, and possibly internal injuries. With Stewart in the automobile at the time were two Oakland women who gave the names of Miss Berg and Miss Hanson. They are not held.

Police investigation revealed that Stewart was driving an auto borrowed from Dr. John T. Kergan, Oakland city physician. Stewart was arraigned yesterday and released on $2000 bail by Judge A. H. McKinnon.

The accident occurred according to Groom, when Stewart cut into the wrong side of the road too sharply in aproaching the Stag, a highway resort. The two women and their escort departed the scene of the accident shortly after the crash, and it was not until late yesterday that the Contra Costa authorities succeeded in identification after discovering that the machine belonged to Dr. Kergan

Auto Wreck In Averting Collision

Presence of mind of R. A. Noble, driving a twin six Packard sedan last night, when he applied the brakes to his big car, averted a collision with a Santa Fe passenger train at the San Pablo and Macdonald avenue crossing, about 10:30.

The car did something resembling a somersault and landed in the ditch spilling Noble and two ladies and a male companion, but no one was hurt

Noble said he was northbound on San Pablo avenue, having paralleled the Santa Fe tracks for some time runing along with the train which was returning to the Richmond terminal from Oakland. As he approached the crossing the train rounded the curve throwing the lights directly across his path. He thought the engine was about to run him down, whereupon he applied the brakes. The big car coughed and bucked, and did a sort of rhimmy, then was catapulted into a ditch alongside the track and very near the crossing, where three girls were killed on July 6.

The occupants were thrown out, but all miraculously escaped.

The car was wrecked.

The train was the same one that killed the three Oakland girls.

He declined to give the names of his friends.

STEPHENS MAY ORDER TROOPS OUT IN SOUTH

Sacramento, July 15.—Troops of the National Guard at San Pedro in encampment within five hours ride of San Bernardino are under arms awaiting orders to move, it was learned late today. Six hundred men, in all branches of the service, are being held in readiness. It was reported here that final decision by Governor Stephens as to whether or not he will order the troops to San Bernardino rests upon further word he is expecting momentarily from San Bernardino.

Reports were circulating strongly at the Capitol that a detachment of troops was about to be ordered to the scene of trouble.

The nation-wide strike of the railroad shop craftsmen entering upon its third week finds no change in the situation in Richmond.

The men are "standing pat," and leaders among them inform the Record-Herald that there is no waivering in their ranks, nor the slightest semblance of turning.

Strike 98 Per Cent.

"The strike in Richmond is 98 per cent, perfect. And we look for our men to remain firm and loyal. They are fighting for a principle—deep-rooted, and will not sacrifice their ultimate gain for some temporary advantage," one of the men told the Record-Herald.

Picketers on Job

The picketers are on the job 24 hours a day.

The men are determined. Feel they may need a bit larger about it, but there is no trouble here.

Public sentiment in Richmond decidedly is with the 600 strikers.

Offers of credit are tendered from time to time by merchants, and instances are noted of goods being sold the strikers at cost.

It is said that the rolling stock of the Santa Fe and the Southern Pacific is showing in many instances evidences lack of the accustomed care of workmen.

There has been no interefernces with the operations of trains, nor no tendency to derange schedules.

FAIR VISITOR SAYS SACTO IN CRIME WAVE

Holds-ups in the down town district of Sacramento are an almost nightly occurrence.

It is not safe for an unescorted individual to walk abroad along the lanes of the capital city after 9 o'clock in the evening, and there is a sort of "carnival of crime," which plays the whole gamut of outlawry, according to Miss Ethel Everson, of Sacramento who arrived yesterday and is the week-end house guest of Miss Jeanette Schraeder at 152 Fourth street.

Sacramento's Saturnalia seems to have been ushered in with the first days of summer, according to the fair visitor.

Causes Puzzling

It is not known what has caused this reversion to the bad features of the "days of '49."

During the recent celebration in Sacramento, the city's best citizens and "master minds" acquired the gun-shooter habit, and it was considered an accomplishment to be "quick on the draw," but that was only make believe.

Did some of the river rats fall for the custom which was only for fun and find in the suggestion an easy way to "get rich quick?"

This question is puzzling the police of Sacramento.

Miss Everson and Miss Schrader were college chums at the University of California.

Sons, Daughters Picnic Today

MARS' WHITE SPOT

It is not inconceivable that intelligence on the planet Mars is trying to signal the Earth. That explanation of the great white spot that Lowell astronomers reported to have appeared on the disk of the little red world recently is more reasonable scientifically than that a geologic disturbance has taken place, causing the glare of a previously concealed substance to shine forth over a great area.

The most probable explanation, however, is that the white spot is of meteorological origin—a great cloud or a snow area.

Mars is admittedly a cooler and an older planet in world evolution than the earth. Man has knowledge of some 6,000 years of earthly history and at no time has there appeared on this sphere, vastly more active with possible interior heat and much more liable to geologic stresses, any evidence of a disturbance so extensive.

On the other hand, if Mars is inhabited—and this is a hypothesis unproved and unclaimed by even the most ardent of the Lowell school—its people are likely to be much farther along the scale of development than those of this world. With the powers their tremendously older civilization has developed, it is not unreasonable that they could illuminate an area of 300,000 square miles, comparable with the area of one of the medium sized United States. Moreover, they, conceivably having better observational means than our own scientists, could know more about Earth's habitability, and could design a plant intended to signal us.

During the hundred years of the study of Mars as a possibly inhabited sphere a number of schemes have been devised for communicating with the Martians. They varied in principle, but all depended on vision until the perfection of the wireless telegraph suggested the possibility of hurling ether waves across the millions of miles of space in the hope that Mars had some means of detecting them. One bright suggester wanted to illuminate a vast area on the Sahara desert so that an earthly "white spot" would show against the yellow of the sands. Another man wanted to establish six immense searchlights at intervals on the plains of the central United States, and so locate them that they would reproduce in tiny sparkles the figure of the Great Dipper, a celestial object certainly familiar to the supposed Martians.

Still a better suggestion from the scientific point of view, was the proposal to establish lines of light in such fashion as to illustrate the 47th proposition of Euclid. Such a demonstration to developed minds on Mars would instantly define a zone of communication for it would not only prove to Mars that we were alive "down here" and desirous of conversing, but that we had attained some small progress in mathematics and knew about the properties of a right angle triangle.

During the very recent stage-centering of Mars on the occasion of its near approach to Earth, a contemporary wondered how, if signals could be exchanged, the Martians and Earthians could possibly "savvy" one another's language. The scientist never bothers an instant about this. He knows that scientific minds, separated by barriers of alien speech can meet and commune in the realm of mathematics, where intelligence fastens on intelligence and the passage of thought is quick and certain.

If Martians are trying to signal, they have picked a good time. The 1922 opposition is just past and the two planets are receding from one another at a rapid rate, but interest among observers on the earth at this time should be so stimulated that in 1924 when Mars and Earth are closer—by 7,000,000 miles—something conclusive might be expected.

A headline asks: "Will Divorce Destroy the United States?" It will not. Too many old-fashioned couples stay put. And did you know that there are many more silver weddings celebrated every year than there are divorces granted?

ZEB KNOTT FOR SHERIFF!

Supervisor Zeb Knott seems to be standing firm in his decision not to make the race for sheriff of Contra Costa County. Despite insistent rumors that he would get in and mix it with Sheriff Veale, Tony Reggiardo and Frank Nixon, he yesterday said nay.

Knott is a good supervisor, and Richmond and her neighboring towns know this to be a fact.

But many of Knott's friends have said that a man who makes a good supervisor would make a good sheriff.

What do you think about it?

CAST

John Manning.....William Duncan
Ethel Austin .....Edith Johnson
Frederick Applorpe .Jack Richardson
Milton Hulst .....Henry Hebert
Mrs. Austin .....Mathilde Brundage
MacRoberts .....Charles Dudley

For those who like adventure and suspense, no better production could be recommended than "No Defense," which will be shown at the Macdonald theater today.

William Duncan, who has made a reputation as a man of the open fighting his way every foot of the film, is again given another role of this type. Edith Johnson, his co-star, is seen as a young society girl full of charm and courage. She secretly marries the hero who goes in the Northwest to make his fortune as a miner. A partner of his turns crooked, kills the third members of the trio and accuses Manning, a role assumed by Duncan. From that point Manning is a hunted man. The Northwest Mounted Police chase him through the wilderness of the Canadian Northwest. He hides in an Indian encampment and gradually makes his way back home only to find, as Enoch Arden did, that his wife, believing him dead, had married another, but unlike Enoch Arden Manning appears before his wife and saves her from a blackmailer.

The second husband of the girl is District Attorney, and candidate for governor. Manning, to shield his wife takes the blame of a murder and is speedily convicted. The District Attorrney, then governor, refuses to pardon the husband although he knows the truth. Here Edith Johnson comes in for some very dramatic work when she threatens to kill herself when the governor refuses to pardon her first husband.

Duncan makes a daring leap on horseback over a cliff, takes a desperate chance climbing down the side of a precipice with a rope, does some spectacularr riding, has a number of thrilling fight scenes and rides to San Francisco on the sleepers of a freight train.

"Here he is now—"

Gramont leaped from the car and strode forward.

"What's been going on here?" he demanded, sharply. "Hammond—"

"I found a dead man over in them bushes," shot out Hammond, "and these guys jumped me before I seen 'em. They claim I done it—"

"A dead man!" repeated Gramont, and looked at the three. "What do you mean?"

"Give him the spiel, Chacherre," growled one of them. Ben Chacherre stepped forward, his bold eyes fastened on those of Gramont with a look of defiance.

"The sheriff was here some time ago, looking for a stolen boat," he said, "and went off toward the Ledanois place. We were following, in order to help him search, when we came upon this man standing in the bushes, over the body of the sheriff. A knife was in his hand, and the sheriff had been stabbed to death. He drew a pistol and shot one of us—"

Gramont was staggered for a moment. "Wait!" he exclaimed. "Hammond, how much of this is true?"

"What I'm tellin' you, cap'n," answered Hammond, doggedly. "I found a man layin' there and was looking at him when these guys jumped me. I shot that fellow in the arm, all right, then they grabbed my gun and got me down. That's all."

The sheriff—murdered!

Into the mind of Gramont leaped that brief conversation which he had overheard between Ben Chacherre and the sheriff; the strange, unnatural silence which had concluded that broken-off conversation. He stared from Hammond to the others, speechless for the moment, yet with hot words rising impetuously in him.

Now he noticed that Chacherre and his two companions were watching him very intently, and were slightly circling out. He sensed an acquaintance among all these men. He saw that the wounded man had finished his bandaging, and was now holding his unwounded hand in his pocket, bulkily, menacingly.

Danger flashed upon Gramont—flashed upon him vividly and with startling clearness. He realized that anything was possible in this isolated spot—this spot where murder had so lately been consummated! He checked on his very lips what he had been about to blurt forth; at this instant, Hammond voiced the thought in his mind.

"It's a frame-up!" said the chauffeur, angrily.

"That's likely, isn't it?" Chacherre flung the words in a sneer, but with a covert glance at Gramont. "This fellow is your chauffeur, ain't he? Well, we got to take him in to Houma, that's all."

"Where's the sheriff's body?" demanded Gramont, calmly.

"Over there," Chacherre gestured. "We ain't had a chance to bring him back yet—this fellow kept us busy. Maybe you want to frame up an alibi for him?"

Gramont paid no attention to the sneering tone of this last. He regarded Chacherre fixedly, thinking hard, keeping himself well in hand.

"You say the sheriff was here, then went over toward the Ledanois land?" he asked. "Did he go alone, or were you with him?"

"We were fixin' to follow him," asserted Chacherre, confidently. This was all Gramont wanted to know—that the man was lying. "We were trailin' along after him when he stepped into the bushes. This man of yours was standing over him with a knife—"

"I was, too, when they found me—I was cuttin' me a fishpole," said Hammond, sulkily. He was plainly beginning to be impressed and alarmed by the evidence against him. Gramont only nodded.

"No one saw the actual murder, then?"

"No need for it," said Chacherre, brazenly. "When we found him that way! Eh?"

"I suppose not," answered Gramont, his eyes fastened thoughtfully on Hammond. The latter caught the look, let his jaw fall in astonishment, then flushed and compressed his lips—and waited. Gramont glanced at Chacherre, and launched a chance shaft.

"You're Ben Chacherre, aren't you? Do you work for Mr. Fell?"

The chance shot scored. "Yes," said Chacherre, his eyes narrowing.

"What are you doing here, then?"

For an instant Chacherre was off guard. He did not know how much—or little—Gramont knew; but he did know that Gramont was aware who had taken the loot of the Midnight Masque from the luggage compartment of the car. This knowledge, very naturally, threw him back on the defense of which he was most sure.

"I came on an errand for my master," he said, and with those words gave the game into Gramont's hands.

There was a moment of silence. Gramont stood apparently in musing thought, conscious that every eye was fastened upon him, and that one false move would now spell disaster. He gave no sign of the tremendous shock that Chacherre's words had just given him; when he spoke, it was quietly and coolly:

"Then your master is evidently associated with Memphis Izzy Gumberts, who owns this place here. Is that right?"

Both Hammond and Chacherre's two friends started at this.

"I don't know anything about that," returned Chacherre, with a shrug which did not entirely conceal his uneasiness. "I know that we've got a murderer here, and that we'll have to dispose of him. Do you object?"

"Of course not," said Gramont, calmly. "Step aside and give me a moment in private with Hammond. Then by all means take him in to Houma. I'd suggest that you tie him up, or make use of handcuffs if the sheriff brought any along. Then you'd better take in the body of the sheriff also. Hammond, a word with you!"

This totally unexpected acquiescence on the part of Gramont seemed to stun Chacherre into inaction. He half moved, as though uncertain whether to bar Gramont from the prisoner, then he stepped aside as Gramont advanced. A gesture to his two companions prevented them from interfering.

"Keep 'em covered, though," he said, shifting his own rifle slightly and watching with a scowl of suspicion.

Gramont ignored him and went up to Hammond, with a look of warning.

"You'll have to submit to this, old man," he said, in a tone that the others could not overhear. "Don't dream that I'm deserting you; but I want a good look at this place if all three of them go away. They must not suspect—"

"Cap'n, look out!" broke in Hammond, urgently. "This here is a gang—the whole thing is a frame-up on me!"

"I know it—I was present when the sheriff was murdered; but keep quiet. I'll come to Houma later tonight and see you." He turned away with a shrug, as though Hammond had denied him some favor, and lifted his voice. "Chacherre! How are you to take this man into town? How did you get here? Will you need to use my car?"

"No." The Creole jerked his head toward the barn. "I came in Mr. Fell's car—it's got a sprung axle and is laid up. We'll take him back in another one."

"Very well," Gramont paused and glanced around. "This is a terrible blow, men. I never dreamed that Hammond was a murderer or could be one! You don't know of any motive for the crime?"

They shok their heads, but suspicion was dying from their eyes. Gramont glanced again at his chauffeur.

"I'll not abandon you, Hammond," he said, severely, coldly. "I'll stop in at Houma and see that you have a lawyer. I think, gentlemen, we had better attend to bringing in the body of the sheriff, eh?"

The wounded man dodged into the barn and returned with a strip of rope. Chacherre took this and firmly bound Hammond's arms, then forced him to sit down and bound his ankles.

"You watch him," he ordered the wounded member of the trio. "We'll get the sheriff."

Allowing Chacherre and his companion to take the lead, Gramont went with them to the place where the murdered officer lay. As he went, the conviction grew more sure within him that, when he lay there by the rivulet, he had actually heard the last words uttered by the sheriff; that Chacherre had committed the murder in that moment—a noiseless, deadly stab! That Hammond could or would have done it he knew was absurd.

They found the murdered man lying among the bushes. He had been stabbed under the fifth rib—the knife had gone direct to the heart. Chacherre announced that he had Hammond's knife as evidence and Gramont merely nodded his head.

Lifting the body between them, they bore it back to the barn.

"Now," said Gramont, quickly, "I'm off for Houma—if I don't miss my road! You men will be right along?"

"In a jiffy," said Chacherre promptly.

Gramont climbed into his car and drove away. He had no fear of anything happening to Hammond; the evidence against the latter was damning, and with three men to swear him into a hangman's noose, they would bring him to jail safe enough.

"A clever devil, that Chacherre!" he thought, grimly. "We're up against a gang, beyond any doubt. Now, if they don't suspect me—"

Woman Drives Thru Yosemite Park

"Well, Mrs. Jordan! I think you are a clever woman. You don't weigh more than 110 pounds and it must be quite a task to drive up to Yosemite and back. Didn't you have any tire trouble or anything?

"Not a speck of any kind of trouble. It isn't size alone that one needs. I know my car and I know just about what it will stand."

"Did you take your two little girls with you?"

"Of course I did, and mother went too. The roads don't amount to much and I wouldn't tackle it again until the highway is finished. But we had a wonderful time.

"Of course you did. I've never been there myself, but they say the scenery is something wonderful. Did you camp out all the time or stop at hotels?"

"We took one meal a day on the average at a hotel and we slept at hotels all but two nights. And I was so glad I got the outing suit. It was so satisfactory. It looked trim all the time. I got it at Cherry's at 515 13th street. Tweed suit for $19.50 which was formerly priced at $49.50. I wore a soft felt hat and pongee blouses with it. And you know the best thing about Cherry's is that one can buy them on credit."

WOULD HAVE BEEN IN GRAVE LONG AGO IF NOT FOR FONG WAN

Alvarado, July 5, 1922.

For years I had stomach trouble with gas which pressed on my heart with unbearable pain. I could not walk from one side of the table to the other without stopping to catch my breath. My stomach was so bloated that I could neither eat nor lie down with comfort. My back ached fearfully and it seemed as though I continually carried a heavy load on it. My bowels never moved naturally and I suffered also from female complaints.

I consulted many doctors. They said that mine was a surgical case and that a tumor must be removed before I could get relief. I feared and dreaded an operation. My brother, John Limas, and his friend, Mr. M. Frazer, both of whom had been cured of stomach trouble by the FONG WAN HERB SPECIALIST, advised me to try him. My brother took me down to his place at the corner of 8th and Clay Sts., Oakland. I took the herbs for four months, cooking them myself. I am now strong and well and feel splendid.

Had it not been for my brother's advice and FONG WAN'S skill, I should have been in my grave long ago.

MRS. JULIA ANDRADE,
Box 13, Alvarado, Calif.

Notwithstanding the fact that her brother had been greatly benefited by the FONG WAN HERBS, Mrs. Julia Andrade had to be encouraged repeatedly to continue with the treatment. After having drunk the herbs but a few weeks, although she realized that her condition was somewhat improved, she was skeptical and feared that she would never get well. She might have discontinued altogether and never have regained her health had she not met Mrs. Cook in the FONG WAN OFFICE.

Mrs. Cook told Mrs. Andrade that she had suffered with a painful growth in her side, and that after she had taken the FONG WAN HERBS for three months, it had disappeared. She also told that her brother, Mr. McCraw, had but one leg, and that this leg was so crippled that he was confined to his bed for nearly a year. The doctors said they could do nothing for him unless he would consent to have his foot amputated.

He tried an inexperienced Chinese Herbalist for 8 weeks, but the shooting pain continued day and night. Then Mr. McCraw's young brother came home. He told him to quit that herbalist and try the FONG WAN HERB SPECIALIST. After Mr. McCraw had drunk the first cup of Herb Tea prepared by FONG WAN, the pain grew less and he enjoyed the first night's sleep in months. He continued to take the treatment for about three months. His toe healed up finely and he grew stronger all over.

Upon hearing about these marvelous cures, Mrs. Andrade was much encouraged and she decided to stick to the treatment, with the result that she also was entirely healed.

COPY CATS

During the past ten years, the FONG WAN HERB SPECIALIST has devoted all his leisure time to study and research. He has assorted all effective formulas contained in ancient Chinese volumes of Herbal lore and has learned the methods of China's most famous Herbalists. In addition to this, by making a careful study of each individual case, he has invented many formulas of his own, by which he has adapted the herbs to the systems of American people. All these formulas have been written in his own handwriting in a book, for ready reference. The book contains not only the best from the ancients but also the original formulas which are the result of his painstaking research.

Since he has been in Oakland, the FONG WAN HERBALIST has employed more than a dozen men to work for him. Some of these employees, without either his knowledge or consent, have surreptitiously copied his book and later opened up herb businesses for themselves. Naturally, the FONG WAN FORMULAS bring quick and beneficial results and these so-called herbalists are able to make cures. However, as soon as they strike an obstinate case or one that is a little different from the ordinary, no results are obtained, as these herbalists are unable to modify the formulas to suit the individual case. FONG WAN has seen three different copies of his book in the possession of former employes who have hung out their shingles and set themselves up as Herbalists. The public should beware of these cheap imitations and consult only dependable herbalists of known ability.

MAGDRY BATTERY FACTS

CONSTRUCTION—It has no separators, which are the source of much trouble and expense. It contains no liquid, which eliminates the inconvenience of constant attention and the hazard of forgetfulness. JUST PUT A MAG-DRY IN YOUR CAR AND FORGET ABOUT IT.

TYPES—There is a type for radols and for every make and style of automobile.

RECHARGING—The battery recharges from the automobile generator or can be recharged at any battery service station in from one-sixth to one-half the time required to recharge a wet battery. THE CHARGE LASTS LONGER.

COST—The initial cost is about 30 per cent less, the service is for three times as long, and there are practically no repair bills.

THIS BATTERY IS NOT AN EXPERIMENT—It has been in use since 1913 and submitted to the severest tests under every possible circumstance.

It is GUARANTEED for 3 YEARS.

BANFF, HEADQUARTERS FOR NORTH AMERICA'S ALPINISTS, A MAGNET FOR HIKERS, CAMPERS AND MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS

Banff, the home of the Alpine Club of Canada, is the Mecca of trail-hitters, campers and mountain climbers during July, August and September. Many of them belong to the Alpine clubs of Canada, America and England, but many others who are not members of any club enjoy the public walking or riding tours to Mt. Assiniboine, the "Matterhorn" of the Canadian Rockies."

This towering peak, nearly 12,000 feet high, will again be "at home" this summer to lovers of the mountains, Assiniboine Camp being pitched in full view of the great massif. By trail Mt. Assiniboine is forty-four miles south of Banff, but several rest camps between the two places break the journey and make it easy for even the "tenderfoot." There are sure-footed ponies for those who ride, the Alpine pack train carries limited baggage and expert guides go along to safeguard the hikers and campers and cook their food.

Wadsworth said, "There's joy in the mountains," and Byron sang the praises of Mount Blanc, "On a throne of rocks, in a robe of clouds, with a diadem of snow." Shelley advised everybody to "See the mountains kiss high heaven," and Pope must have been filled with the true mountain climber's ambition to keep on upward when he said, "Hills peep o'er hills, and Alps on Alps arise." As for the hikers, campers and climbers who sally forth from Banff, Lake Louise or Glacier, they may go as far as they wish and climb as high as the real, imported Swiss guides will let them. Adventurous ones, with previous experience, scale high peaks and others content themselves with side-trips to mountain lakes and passes, camp life under the stars and the re-vitalizing influence of the high altitudes and the pure mountain air.

The public walking or riding tours between Banff and Mt. Assiniboine start twice a week from Banff during July, August and September and are under the supervision of A. O. Wheeler who is also director of the Alpine Club of Canada. These tours, however, are separate and distinct from the annual camp of the Alpine Club of Canada at Palliser Pass, but a day's journey, or thereabouts, from Assiniboine Camp. Lake Louise and Glacier are also favorite resorts of mountain climbers who may engage at these resorts the services of Swiss guides.

"The Line Is Busy"

When the telephone operator tells you "the line is busy," this fact has been made known to her by an electric signal. With the thousands of calls in daily telephone traffic, if the operator, to secure this information, were compelled to listen on the line of the party called, prompt service would be out of the question.

This delay is eliminated by an electric device which in the fraction of a second automatically indicates that the line called for is in use.

When "busy" reports are repeated on successive calls for the same number, it is generally due to an immoderate use of the called line. The length of a telephone conversation is obviously beyond the control of the telephone operator. Have confidence in her when she makes the report "the line is busy."

Stomach As Heavy As Lead

March 16, 1922.
I suffered from dysentery and difficult breathing, my bowels moving constantly with bloody discharges. I also had murning indigestion and my stomach felt as though there was a piece of lead in it.
Failing to get relief elsewhere I took the herbs of the FONG WAN HERB CO. for two weeks. My former complaints have left me entirely and I am now enyoing good health.

Suffered Unnecessarily
Oakland, Feb. 3, 1922.
At intervals I suffered severe pleurisy pains which began in the right side of my chest and ran around under my arm into my shoulder blade. It was both painful and difficult to raise my arm. I had taken various sorts of treatment for the trouble, but had found no relief.
Now, after seven weeks of the FONG WAN HERBS, the pain in my chest is entirely gone and I feel quite well. I bought the herbs in packages and cooked them at home.

91 Park Place Point Richmond

My stomach, kidney and liver were in bad condition. The lower part of my body pained me awfully. I could hardly lie on either side and sleep. My bowels were hard to move and painful. I treated with other doctors and medicines, but did not seem to do me much good. After taking six weeks Kong Wah Herbs I feel like a new woman.

Hearing of the wonderful cures Dr. Wong Him has made I thought I would give him a trial. After going around to different doctors, none seemed to know what ailed me. But Doctor Wong Him did. He has just cured me of a bad case of Diabetes and Kidney trouble.

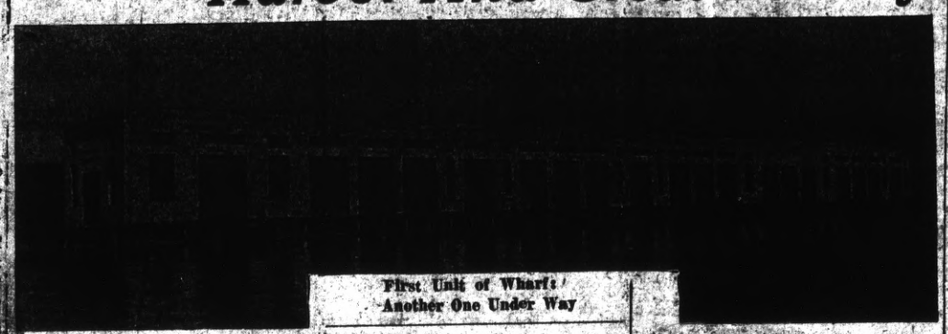
SUB STATION OF POWER CO NEARS FINISH

Work on the longest high voltage submarine cable in the world, that of the Great Western Power Company will be completed before the end of the year, according to a statement made the other day in the offices of the company. It will connect their new sub-station in the Richmond hills with San Francisco.

This new sub-station will be known as the Golden Gate and will cost $1,000,000 when completed. It will be the principal distributing point for the Great Western load in the San Francisco bay region, and will be the terminus of the 165,000-volt steel tower transmission line from the new Caribou plant. This plant is located on the north fork of the Feather river in Plumas County, and was placed in operation last year. The double circuit 140,000-volt steel tower plant, which passes through Oakland, will also be connected.

Foreign Trade Club Will Visit Harbor And Great Estuary



The Foreign Trade Club of San Francisco, addressed a letter to the "Chamber of Commerce, Richmond," stating that they propose to charter a suitable vessel and make a trip around the harbor and up the estuary of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers during the latter part of August.

Unfortunately for Richmond there is no regular Chamber of Commerce functioning at this time, but despite this, Richmond's business interests will find a way to circumvent this remiss condition and will participate in the proposed expedition.

Trip Purposes Outlined

"The purpose of the trip will be to enable business men to see the harbor developments which have taken place and are proposed, and to get an adequate conception of the possibility of this Bay and its tributary river system."

This presents a rare opportunity to the great and growing industries of Richmond to call attention to what marine men and factory builders are looking upon as one of the greatest potential harbors on the Western hemisphere.

The port of Richmond upon which hundreds of thousands of dollars are being expended by virtue of Congressional aid and a municipal enabling act has a number of attractive and appealing points to which the attention of the "explorers" ought to be called.

San Pablo Bay

San Pablo Bay, one of the most beautiful stretches of water in the world, should give some rational booster of Richmond inspiration for an hour's talk.

A man with imagination who can picture the future Richmond when great river boats steam in from the Sacramento and the San Joaquin rivers bearing rich cargoes of food stuffs grown upon the limitless fertile acres that a gracious and generous God has given to California!

A man who can and will point out the very manifest natural reasons why Richmond twenty years from today will be one of the deep water world ports.

City's Great Wharves

The wharf and the warehouse which are the pride and the hope of the city will impress the visitors—if some one points them out.

Great structures of steel and mason-

First Unit of Wharf Another One Under Way

ry which can afford safe, comfortable and economical dockage to some of the biggest ships afloat are phases of the port which will bear stressing.

Clubs Can Be Effective

And while unhappily Richmond has not a Chamber of Commerce, there are many fine organizations here that can get behind this proposition and co-operate with the Foreign Trade Club of San Francisco.

The Record-Herald moves that the Lions Club, and the Rotary Club, and the women's clubs of the city, and any and all other civic units whose functions are towards a bigger and better Richmond, name without delay, committees that will act together for Richmond.

That they severally and jointly get in touch with the Foreign Trade Club, 731 Merchants' Exchange Building, San Francisco, without delay, is of the utmost importance.

All together!

Chevrolet Coupe Is Utility Car Dealer Explains

C. C. Kratzer, Richmond dealer for the Chevrolet and Buick at 1501 Macdonald avenue, announces the first showing of the new Chevrolet coupe. This model is attracting nationwide interest and those who have been waiting for a chance to see it will now welcome this opportunity.

"This car was designed to meet a specific demand. The professional or commercial motorist has always preferred a car of moderate seating capacity with ample facilities for carrying instruments, apparatus, merchandise and luggage.

"Heretofore the choice of such drivers has been limited. Open roadsters, while most economical to operate because of light weight, have not met with the requirements of all year service and protection against the weather.

"The Chevrolet Utility Coupe exactly meets the requirements. It combines high quality, low price, low operating cost, all years serviceability and extra large rear compartment.

"Some of the many features about the construction of this new model are: new superior Chevrolet chassis with all its refinements, selective type transmission, independent clutch and service brake pedals, electric starter and lights with legal lenses, speedometer demountable rims, cord tires, Fisher body, smart lines with high quality trim and finish, wide single seat, wide windows, broad vision, wide doors, extra large luggage compartment and with windshield adjustable at top and bottom and fitted with rain visor."

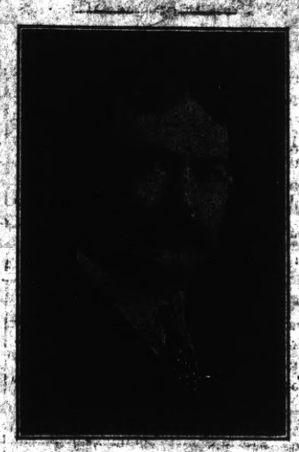
AUTO TRAFFIC ON FERRIES IS AT PEAK



Charles Van Damme

The increased and increasing tourist traffic into the hills of Marin, Sonoma and contiguous territory, is causing the Richmond-SanRafael Ferry & Transportation Company to exert itself these summer days.

The week-end and holiday business has reached proportions where in the company is impelled to maintain a fast service for longer hours than ever in its history.

The fact that "vacation land" which lies beyond San Quentin is easily and safely reached by Richmond's ferry line is becoming more generally known from day to day, and this is taxing the City of Richmond and the Charles Van Damme to do their utmost.

"This is the greatest touring year we have ever experienced," said Charles Van Damme, president of the company.

Van Damme is a man who puts all his vital energies into the business at hand: which is affording motorists and others a fine and dependable service between Point Richmond and Point San Quentin.

The Richmond interests are ably taken care of by Mose Mock.

It is a pleasure to those who use the boats of this line, because courtesy and attention to business are routine with the officers and all employes and attaches on the two good boats.

They relieve biliousness, flatulence, gas, headache, sour stomach and other ills caused by indigestion. Make fat people feel lighter and freer."

Tulare County On The Job At State Fair; It Is Now Up To Richmond

Sacramento, July 15.—A. E. Miot secretary of the Tulare County Board of Trade, arrived in Sacramento this week and commenced installation of the Tulare county display for the 1922 State Fair, September 2 to 10. This is the first exhibit to go in this year.

William F. Dabbelstein, exhibit builder for the State Fish and Game Commission will assist Miot in the construction of a display which they is so different from last year's and unique in its conceptions.

"Although we won a number of prizes last year, we are not coming to the fair with the idea of taking all the premiums," said Miot. "We want to display the resources of our county in an attractive manner and assist in making the State Fair better every year."

Contra Costa County!, with her undisputed claim to having the "highest per capita purchasing power of any county in the United States," has unlimited possibilities for a display at the state fair that will show a diversification unequalled.

She can show speed in horticulture, dairying, poultry and other lines of husbandry, and certainly in manufactured products will yield her place in the sun to no county in the commonwealth.

Richmond surely cannot afford to pass up this opportunity to show the world that it is her wealth which enables the county to have the highest per capita purchasing power in the United States.
